Temperance in Baltimore.

BALTMORE, Md. — Perhaps the greatest set-back that the temperance cause has received in this city for a long time, were the recent disclosures made by a reporter of the Every Saturday. Among our oldest and most respected citizens are five survivors of the war of 1812, known as "The Old Defenders," whose ages range from 89 to 32 to when the scale has contained. from 80 to 00, to whom the people have been accustomed to look with very great respect and veneration, on account of the part they took in the defence of Baltimore in that war. Every year it has been the custem to commemorate the defense by an anniversary parade and banquet, in which these veterans participate, the day being a general holiday throughout the State. These old soldiers, hale and hearty in appearance, have marched in procession annually and are the finest specimens of robust old age in the city. For some time past there has been con siderable agitation in this section over the temperance question, the adherents of the cause going so far as to demand absolute cause going so far as to demand absolute prohibition. The reporter of the Every Saturday, who did not sympathize with this movement, accordingly set out in search of public opinion, and among others interviewed were these Old Defenders. He found that every one of them—Mr. John C. Morford, aged 80; George Boss, 62; Samuel Jennings, 89; John Peddecord, 90; Nathaniel Watts, 90—had always been in the habit of taking a little stimulant of some kind, and since little stimulant of some kind, and since the discovery of Duffy's pure mait whisky-an article from which every trace of fusel oil is climinated by a secret process-this was their favorite brand. In the words of the venerable Nathaniel Watts-aged 90-when interviewed: "That sir," said he, "is what I call a pure articie; that is Duffy's pure malt whiskey, That's like they use to have in my time."

An eminent London physician, John Gardner, M. D., whose specialty is disease of the aged, has written a work on his favorite topic, and the result of his research is, that the only sure and abiding strength which old age receives is a medithere are 40 male teachers, with 1,415 female; a proportion of one man to nearly twenty-nan women. When the number of the women engaged in instruction so immensely preponderates, it seems to me a matter of a common fairness, as well as of wise expediency, that some share in the general oversight and administration of the schools should be in the hands of their core say. Dr. Storrs_calls attention to the ability with which many of the city's public charitable institutions, founded an public charitable institutions, founded and managed by women, are conducted, and says in conclusion: "While I have no adverse criticism to make on the present management of our public schools, I do not feel the force of the suggestion that 'what is well enough should be let alone.' Fishes that Answer a Bell.

Louistille Courier-Journal...

Captain Levi Shields, residing a few miles East of Corydon, is engaged very extensively in the culture of German carp. He states that when he wants to feed the fish he goes to the pond and rings a small bell. Instantly the fish from all parts of the pond tart for the feeding place and the pond start for the feeding place and gather in great numbers near the shore and fight for the particles of food as it is thrown to them. The Captain says he can "call up" his fish at any time by sim-

Exchange.

Sheep being excellent foragers, and capable of picking up a portion of their subsistence, have been made to adapt themselves to those sections where the land cannot be profitably cultivated and where they are supposed to cost but little in proportion to that which may be derived from them. For that reason the American farmers have given their attention to the small, active breeds, such

American farmers have given their attention to the small, active breeds, such as the merino and native, which exist in large flocks more successfully than do those of largersize.

The objections to the large mutton breeds of sheep are that they require too much attention, and must have good pasturage; that they cannot well exist to gether in large numbers, and must be protected from the heat and cold. It is no doubt true that the merino is hardy and requires less care than the large breeds but the question to be considered is whether it will not pay to give the large breeds that attention which many are not willing to bestow. We have the difference in methods as practiced in England and America. The Englandman does not attempt to produce wool, estimating the wool product as something that attends the production of mutton as a secondary adjunct, and aims to secure as large a carcass as possible. So great has been the adjunct, and aims to secure as large a car-case as possible. So great has been the progress stained by the English in the improvement of the mutton breeds that it is not uncommon to secure lambs weigh-ing 100 when they are only three months old, while 150 pounds is often reached by six-month-old lambs. These weights are greater than those of our mature native sheep, and show that the farmer, with the use of the improved breeds of mutton sheep, can derive a large profit without looking to the receipts from wool at all, adjunct, and sims to secure as large a car

A thrifty growth of vine is much protection against the ravages of the potato bestle. Other things being equal the beetle will any her eggs on the weakest, feebleat-growing potato hill in the field.

Instinct teaches her to avoid thrifty vines full of sap and which also hold the dew a long time in the morning. Heavy dews and rain prevent many potato bugs' eggs from hatching. The use of sypsum with Paris green on potatoes has thus a double advantage. The poison destroys the bugs already hatched, and the gypsum makes the vine more thrifty, holds dow on it longer and thus addless many of the eggs. Frequent cultivation of the soil is also helpful in keeping the potato-bugs in check. The cultivator should be drawn as closely to the row as possible, no matter if some difficity of all it touches. In a cold, wet time there is little to fear from the potato-bug. The eggs will be added or the young destroyed as soon as hatched. But one or two days of hot, dry weather will bring the enomy out in force, and prompt applied in the morning and as much as possible while the dew is on the leaves, as the plaster will then adhere better.
